Correspondence via Email

Reached out to the client regarding the web application being deployed via Vercel, and being readily available to them with the link. Gave a call to action with the URL linked for them to check out the website and make accounts to access the full feature set. Requested that the client provide some additional materials for importing their real data for the site. Client replied that they had briefly skimmed the website but hadn’t made an account yet, but they were happy with how it looks.
